WHY LEADERSHIP SKILLS MATTER

“Management is about persuading people to do things they do not want to do, while leadership is about inspiring people to do things they never thought they could.”
- Steve Jobs

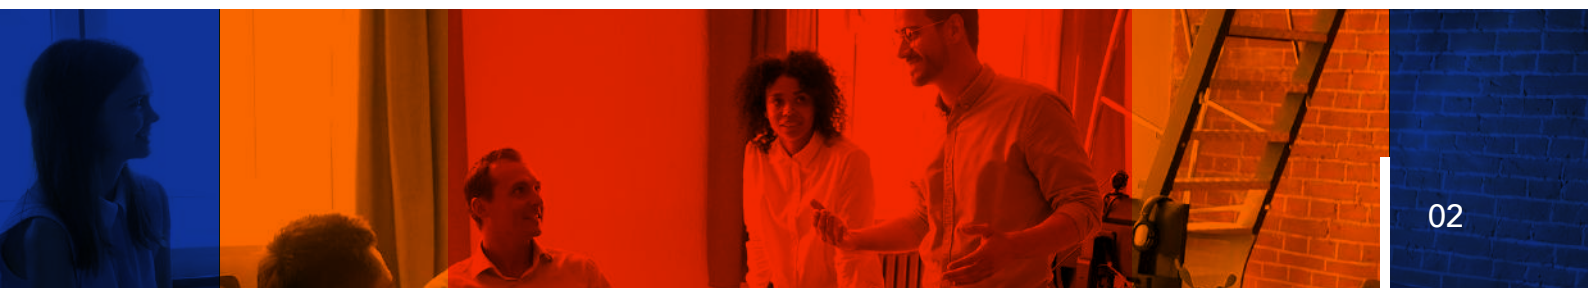

The ability to manage and influence a variety of people you work with, lies at the heart of successful leadership. These are also the most valued skills employers look for when hiring or promoting people into leadership positions. Having the skills needed to deal with tough challenges can not only accelerate your career but also help you create an enjoyable working environment for your teams.

According to the GMAC (Graduate Management Admission Council™) Corporate Recruiter's Survey 2019, working with others and problem solving were the top two skills corporates look for in recent business graduates. Yet less than 5% of MBA curriculums cover this.

Effective Leadership requires a high level of awareness of your own strengths and weaknesses combined with a systematic, data-driven approach. This is both an art and a science, and a skill that can be developed through deliberate practice. The finest leaders don't just rely on intuition, they apply tried and tested tools and frameworks to help them navigate the many leadership challenges they face.

The Future Leaders Programme, offered by NUS in collaboration with Great Learning, takes a structured approach towards making you an effective leader. The program focuses on professional growth, self-awareness and tangible skills that you can apply to real-world situations.

ABOUT THE PROGRAMME

WHAT YOU WILL LEARN AND HOW

In this programme you will learn to identify and evaluate People Management and Self Development skills from the lens of people and employee behavior and interaction. You will be introduced to frameworks & toolkits and get hands-on practice in applying them to real-world situations. The assignments and activities ensure first-hand experience of the impact of the concepts being discussed and will help translate them into tangible skills that are focused on professional growth.

The programme starts with a self-awareness workshop where you get individual feedback about your own leadership style and areas of improvement. You then work with others in small groups, reflecting and testing each concept and seeing it play out in real life. The goal is to help you increase your emotional intelligence, recognize biases, read the early signs of emerging conflicts, understand people's motivations, put structure to these challenges and find practical solutions using frameworks and tools.

THE LEADERSHIP PLAYBOOK

Each week, you will learn a set of tools, checklists and frameworks that you will want to refer back to in future. This ready reckoner will help you apply what you learn today to the challenges of tomorrow. It gives you the opportunity to make notes to your future self and document the feedback you receive from your peers over the course of this programme.
